BIRTHDAY CAKE

A birthday cake was baked tonight
While custards shone in candle light
And icing sugar flowed like creams
Between the layered pastry seams

Glazing fruits were fixed on top
Of caramel rivers sizzling hot
And syrup gleaming at the base
Where cherries lay awaiting taste

Together served with cake was Wurst
So rich and strong to quench all thirst
And swallowed whole with lusty haste
By tongue and lips which licked to taste

To serve these treats with utmost grace
The two were sandwiched at the waist
Like chocolate souls they’d melt in place
Once more to feed in Love’s embrace
